

HOW CULTURAL PARTICIPATION MATTERS AT INDIVIDUAL AND COMMUNITY LEVEL

INTERVENTIONS BY:

Luca Bergamo

Vice Mayor of Rome in charge of cultural development

Enrico Giovannini

Director ASVIS (via video conference)

Nicholas Anastasopoulos

National Technical University of Athens

Cristina da Milano

Culture Action Europe

Robert Manchin

"Observatory of (non) cultural participation" Project, City of Rome

Valentina Montalto

Joint Research Centre, European Commission

László Pintér

Central European University

Ekaterina Travkina

Local Economic and Employment Directorate, OECD

MODERATOR:

Pier Luigi Sacco

IULM

An experimental analysis promoted by Roma Capitale and international practices to assess the relations between culture and citizens' development and wellbeing

3 JUNE
3.00PM – 5.30PM
2019

PALAZZO DELLE ESPOSIZIONI, ROMA
SCALINATA VIA MILANO 9A

FREE ENTRY ON A FIRST COME-FIRST SERVE BASIS

as part of the festivalsvilupposostenibile.it/2019

An international gathering that will bring together academics, political representatives and civil society. The aim: to reflect together on how cultural participation contributes to the development of sustainable societies. Starting from a state-of-the-art discussion with a focus on current and future challenges, four international case studies on practices that assess the impact of cultural experiences will be presented. Among them, the innovative analysis recently carried out by Roma Capitale. The session will be closed by "mirroring reflections and reactions", insights offered by members of civil society and participants from the audience.

The session will be held in English.

Promoted by

In collaboration with

Organised by

